

WHAT IS AND WHAT ISN'T

It's not a formation (Ex. 4-4-2, 4-2-3-1, etc.)

Formation: Is a predisposed positional structure to allow your team to occupy spaces in the different moments of the game.

Your team can play any formation under Juego de Posición.

It's not a Style of Play (Direct vs Associated Play)

Style of Play: An identity defined and constructed by a team's actions during the different moments of the game.

A style of play is a set of characteristics that encompassed all moments of the game. Juego de Posición is not defined in such a way.

It's not a belief system (High Pressuring team, etc.)

Belief System: A set of characteristics that a team tries to withhold throughout the game.

Juego de Posición is more than just a belief system in which players try to live up to during the game.

It's not a about just keeping possession of the ball and seeing if your team can out pass the other team.

A common misconception, the goal of Juego de Posición is not to keep the ball.

Possession is just one of many principal tools that are used within the framework of Juego de Posición.